Poll, a Hobby That

Turned Commercial

and Then Failed

That which ought to have been done but couldn't be done by law was finally accomplished in the natural course of events last Tuesday when the votes of the American people destroyed the carefully-built-up myth that the result of an election could be told before ever the electorate went to the polls.

To put it bluntly, the business of holding pre-election polls is as dead as last week's campaign banner. I don't see it dead and forever—but dead for a long, long time anyway.

You would have thought the presidential poll business would have folded when the Literary Digest miscellany election result, which was the first of the Digest's short-lived ventures into the field of election prediction, was disclosed. Actually the Digest was gone, financially, a year or two earlier, having lost its advertising to the newsmen, Time magazine. The Digest's fall in the hope that one more year would give it a final push might put it back on its feet. But it didn't. The final poll ended in disaster; and the Digest owners, affirming their personal honesty, gave out the opinion that even the best of election prediction systems breaks down sooner or later.

But rivals of the Digest claimed they had new and more "scientific" systems, and because they happened to be right the year the Digest was wrong the public continued to put considerable faith in the things that Dr. Gallup and Mr. Roper peddled as sober fact. Until Tuesday, that is. On Tuesday we buried them all.

I know of no one thing so destructive of impartial examination and debate on campaign issues as the election poll. How can one think and write honestly in the face of definite and daily-repeated claims that an election has already been decided? The pre-election poll started off with a newspaper and a magazine hobby purely amateurish and pretty soon it was dominating the political horizon like an ominous cloud, destroying faith in the objective system of campaign and debate, setting the chips fall where they may.

I do want to say one thing: In my 25 years as a newspaper man I have never bought or published a commercial pre-election poll. The wire service referred to them, of course, for any time a custom becomes nation-wide it also becomes news. But I never subscribed to a commercial poll—and it goes without saying that they of my contemporaries who did pay out money for such things are sharing my prejudice today.

The original local straw vote in 1936, I used it years ago in Hope. When The Star conducted such a test of public opinion on the question of whether our town should have Sunday motion picture shows, following the result of that straw vote, I went ahead and got Sunday picture shows, on the same basis that people are permitted to play golf and baseball, and go driving, on Sunday. But it was a local poll—and amateur, strictly.

But as for national politics the poll is dead—and America is well off because of it. This is our country, therefore our homes and our destiny, which we are supposed to debate honestly and work hard for—not a pre-fixed machine, as the commercial polls tried to make it.

Henry's Gideon Army was progressively killed asleep by JAMES THRASHER. During the closing weeks of the 1948 presidential campaign, a horrid political fate overtook Henry A. Wallace.

His supporters grew less numerous and less enthusiastic. People stopped throwing things at him. Worse still, a lot of them even stopped talking about him. The major candidates for the presidency ignored his presence in the race almost completely. The press, which had given front-page space to his speeches and to pictures of his Southern martyrdom, took to running the news of his campaign in the papers. The polls indicated that his show was slumping, but nobody gave his declining percentage much notice.

Everywhere the dismal signs were apparent: the American people were bored to tears by Henry Wallace. In a campaign marked generally by a lack of public interest, the disinterest in Mr. Wallace grew to monumental proportions. The trouble seemed to be that people quickly learned, if not everything about Mr. Wallace, at least everything he chose or was permitted to reveal about himself. It was apparent early in the game that he had been taken over by the Communists and had become something very like a ventriloquist's dummy on their knees. It was shocking, but the shock wore off. His past history of contradictions and evasions was hunted up, made public, and easily digested.

Truman-Barkley Team Oldest to Win Presidency

Washington, Nov. 4 — (AP) — By outlasting Republican rivals 31 years younger, the Truman-Barkley team became the oldest presidential sweepstakes victors in U. S. history.

At 70, Alben W. Barkley will be the oldest of the nation's vice presidents, while 64-year-old Harry S. Truman is the third oldest man elected chief executive—right behind William Henry Harrison, 68, and James Buchanan, 65.

The Democratic triumph also marks the first time two former Senate colleagues teamed up to cop the White House prize. Back in 1868 the Republicans took the honors with a congressional combination when Senator Benjamin Harrison was elected president with Rep. Levi Morton as his running mate.

Russia Turns Down U. S. Atom Control Plan

Paris, Nov. 4 — (AP) — The United Nations assembly rejected today Russia's proposal for atomic control. The vote was 40 to 6.

Only the Soviet bloc supported the Russian proposal, which called for a treaty banning the atom bomb and a separate treaty setting up controls. The treaties would have become effective simultaneously.

Russia called the Western plan for control of atomic energy fantastic and unreal.

Andrei Y. Vishinsky, leading the Soviet bloc's attack, closing fight, told the United Nations General Assembly the atomic bomb can be answered with atomic bombs and weapons of other kinds.

He asserted the United States does not want international atomic control and a separate treaty setting up controls. The treaties would have become effective simultaneously.

Hector M. Neil of Britain pleaded with Vishinsky not to reject the Western plan merely because it is "novel" ideas on state sovereignty. But Vishinsky repeated the Russian argument that the majority proposal would invade the sovereign rights of states.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada attacked the Russian proposal as "oversimplified."

Vishinsky brought President Truman into the atomic debate again. He quoted the American president as saying recently in Milwaukee that the United States must continue to develop atomic weapons until the "correct" form of international control is in effect.

Gesturing with his arms as he spoke, Vishinsky told the assembly that this apparently meant the American would develop the developing atom bomb until the Western control plan is adopted.

Such an attitude expressed by Mr. Truman means, Vishinsky said, that you are in a vicious circle of cat-and-mouse.

The Russian demanded that the delegates approve the Soviet plan for atomic control. He shouted that there is no basis for agreement now between the Western and Russian plans.

He charged that the United States does not want atomic control and that the Baruch plan is a "cunning maneuver" designed to wreck any control.

The Western plan, approved by a majority of the assembly's political committee, is based on proposals made June 14, 1946, by Bernard M. Baruch, then the U. S. delegate to the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission.

Vishinsky spoke nearly 90 minutes. As he left the rostrum he received a burst of applause from the Slav bloc.

Mr. Vijayalakshmi Pandit, chief Indian delegate, and ambassador to Moscow, told the delegates after Vishinsky spoke that India could not agree to international control of atomic materials remaining in private hands.

Mrs. Pandit proposed an amendment to the Western proposal. The majority of the 58 nations in committee has favored approving the Western plan as drawn up by the majority of the 11-nation atomic commission.

Her amendment proposed that the assembly "approve in substance" the majority report. India has fought consistently in this assembly to tone down the differences between the Western and Soviet blocs.

Vishinsky fought against a majority provision that the atomic commission resume its work where it left off last spring when the East-West impasse showed no signs of breaking.

Mrs. Pandit asked that the assembly amend the majority proposal with instruction to the atomic commission to keep on working for an agreement.

Paul Ramadier, French minister of defense, told the assembly his delegation would vote for the majority plan.

Scout Gifts Committee Plans Drive

The Larger Gifts Committee of the Annual Scout Drive met at noon Wednesday at the Hotel Barlow. This group, consisting of Ben Owen, Graydon Anthony, Martin Pool, Elmer Brown, Fred Ellis, Bill Wray, Dewey Baber, Jack Lowe, and Bill Mudgett, together with District Chairman, Clifford Franks, and Campaign Chairman, Royce Weisenberger, completed plans for the Larger Gifts Campaign this week.

Those contacted by this group will be asked to contribute enough to provide Scouting for one year to at least two boys.

The Scout Field Executive, J. A. Vail Hickman, received from Washington a $10 investment in Scouting from the Southwest Gas & Electric Company which operates only in the Washington area here.

Campaigns will be conducted in Elkins, Washington, Fulton, Spring Hill, and Patmos. The Sara campaign will be handled by County. In all of those areas Scout Troops are active. Of course, much of the expense in Scouting in these smaller towns is borne by the public spirited citizens of Hope.

The Campaign Chairman announced that the general drive would begin on November 9 with the kick-off breakfast at the Hotel Barlow for the workers. Captains appointed thus far are Clifford Franks, Jack Williamson, Thompson Evans, J. Henry Higgins, and E. P. Young, Jr.

B-29 Crash Is Fatal to 18 Enroute Home

MacDill Air Force Base, Fla., Nov. 4 — (UP) — An air force bomber bound from England crashed in the Azores late yesterday, killing 18 of the 20 crewmen and passengers aboard, air force officers disclosed here today.

One crewman was missing and another was injured critically.

The big bomber faltered and crashed into the sea a few seconds after taking off in early darkness from Lagana air force base in the Azores at 6 p. m. last night, according to word received here.

MacDill base issued the following partial list of casualties:

Dead: 18.

1st Sgt. Robert C. Wise, S-Sgt. William D. Branch, S-Sgt. Albert J. Snead, M-Sgt. J. E. Carriker, T-Sgt. William P. Stubblefield, S-Sgt. Raymond J. Chaplin, M-Sgt. Franklin E. Albright, 1st Lieut. William J. Adams, and 1st Lieut. Leonard Post, pilot, all living at the base here or in Tampa.

S-Sgt. Henry B. Anderson, MacDill Field, suffered "major injuries."

Other names will be released when next of kin have been notified.

The B-29 was one of 29 bombers from MacDill that flew to England three and a half months ago for operations over the sea in cooperation with the Royal Air Force. Twelve already have returned to MacDill.

MacDill said another bomber of the same flight was forced down in England early today by engine trouble. There was no damage to the plane or injury to its crew.

The bomber that crashed had homed briefly a Lagana field on its homeward flight. It took off in darkness and a light rain but crashed into the sea 500 yards off the Azores shore a minute later.

MacDill officers said they had no information as to the cause of the accident but an investigating board of flying officers already had started an inquiry on the scene.

Hope Mayor Supports Scout Drive

Mayor Lyle Brown of Hope lists reasons why he is throwing his whole-hearted support to the Boy Scout Drive in Hempstead county.

"I am supporting the Boy Scouts because it not only furnishes wonderful opportunities to the youth of our community, it is a sound investment. If every boy in America could be trained in scouting then we would see delinquency gradually disappear. Our community would be a more prosperous, happier place in which to live. Scouting plays a big part in the life of our youth. It is not a form of fleeting entertainment—scouting builds men, the type of men who guide the destinies of communities. It is an enterprise in which all of us should contribute."

CIO Oil Workers Returning to Jobs Today

San Francisco, Nov. 4 — CIO oil workers began returning to work today for wage increases offered before they struck six months ago.

Agreements had not been reached with all of the struck oil companies but a wage pattern had been set to end the walkout which caused gasoline rationing in the west for a time. Production continued, however, and rationing ended last month.

Shell Oil company was first to sign with the union. Then the union announced peace with Standard Oil at its El Seagordo plant and with Tidewater associated at its Watson, San Jose, and Los Angeles production and harbor units.

Quick settlements with Texaco, Richfield and Union Oil companies were expected, although Richfield and the union have not resumed negotiations.

About 15,000 workers walked out.

Weatherman Sees Showers Tomorrow

By United Press

McMath to Ask Special Bond Election

Fayetteville, Nov. 4 — Gov.-elect Sid McMath said today he will call a special election on his proposal to issue bonds for Arkansas highway construction shortly after he takes office next January.

In a conference here with five members of the Arkansas student body who are members of the state House of Representatives, McMath announced the special election will be held during the 1949 session of the legislature.

The governor-elect said he wants the election before it will be too late for the legislature to work out an alternate plan for financing road building if his bond proposal is defeated in the polls.

With that in mind, McMath probably will call the election early in January, the first month of the two-month legislative session.

McMath campaigned for the Democratic nomination last summer on a plan for our annual highway bond issues. He suggested a $7,000,000 issue in 1949 and a $8,500,000 issue for each of the next three years, each issue to be voted on separately.

McMath told the student-legislators his staff will be composed of "progressive men" who will "get the job done." He said some of the members of his staff will accept positions "at personal sacrifice."

The young governor-elect outlined his legislative program at a breakfast conference with Reps. Forrest Long, Augusta, Aubrey Long, Rison, Travis Mathis, Oklahoma, Emmette Cathright, El Dorado, and Bill Arnold, Jamestown, and members of the university faculty, including President Lewis W. Jones and Law School Dean Robert Leflar.

McMath also conferred with the legislators individually on county problems.

McMath was a guest of the Highway 16-Wet Improvement committee, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Soil Conservation Service at a barbecue at Lake Weddington at noon. He will be a guest of the Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce at a banquet tonight.

Iran Protests Infringement by Red Soldiers

Tehran, Iran, Nov. 4 — A usually reliable source said today Iran has protested to Russia that Soviet soldiers invaded Iranian territory last week. The report of the protest was not officially confirmed.

A government spokesman said 200 Russian troops, with armaments including a tank, crossed the frontier from Soviet Azerbaijan Jan. 26 and fought a four-hour battle with Iranian frontier guards.

Drys Apparently Victorious in Election Issue

Little Rock, Nov. 4 — (UP) — The doubt was practically erased from the last election issue in Arkansas today as opponents of Initiated Act Number Two took a commanding lead in the state's wet-dry fight.

In latest unofficial returns the act—which provided for the holding of all local option liquor elections on general election days—was leading by more than 3,000 votes. The county with 1726 of 2217 precincts reported was 93-051 for to 94,177 against.

The proposed measure—which was supported by the liquor interests and fought by the Anti-Saloon League and church people—provided the only close race in Arkansas balloting. All other proposed initiatives and constitutional amendments were assured of passage with the exception of the anti-liquor tax Amendment No. 4. The play—which would have eliminated the legislators' power to levy a state property tax, was shown under by a two-to-one count of 59,304 to 110,877. It registered a personal defeat for Gov. B. Laney who originally proposed the measure.

President Truman still holds a three-to-one advantage over Republican Tom Dewey. In latest counts Mr. Truman had 125,226 votes in Arkansas as against 40,134 for the GOP. Candidate J. Strom Thurmond—expected to poll a heavy vote in the Wonder State—trailing the New York governor by 4,000 votes with 34,614.

While Mr. Truman's showing in Arkansas was stronger than expected, it still was not as impressive as the whipping majorities piled up by his fellow Democrats from within the state. U. S. Senator John H. McCall had nearly 15 times as many votes as his only opponent, R. Walter Tucker, an independent. And Governor-elect Sid McMath held a ten-to-one count over Charles R. Black of Commerce.

The story was much the same in the congressional races. The best Republican fight was staged by Dalton Dotsen in the Third District. But even there Dotsen was trailing with 7,444 votes to 16,611 for incumbent J. C. Trimble.

Trimble's win maintained Arkansas' unbroken track in Congress as Rep. Brooks' days of Little Rock and Boyd Tackett of Nashville has already joined four unseated congressmen in going to Washington.

Experts Accused of Committing 'Deweycide'

Glasgow, Nov. 4 — (UP) — The Glasgow Bulletin said today in comment on the U. S. presidential election that the public opinion prophets had committed "Deweycide."

Chief of Police Clarence Baker, Sheriff Claude Sutton and Prosecuting Attorney James H. Pickett, in a joint statement today called attention to the provisions of law which prohibits the drinking of intoxicating liquors on any kind in any public place or public gathering.

The statutes and ordinances against public drinking will be strictly enforced at the Hope-Little Rock football game Friday night, these officers said.

"The eyes of the whole state will be upon Hope this week-end," the statement said. Persons attempting to drink intoxicating liquors in the stands or those who are drunk and disorderly can only bring discredit to this community, and such activities will not be tolerated."

May See Some New Faces in Washington

Washington, Nov. 4 — (UP) — President Truman may begin his first elected term in the White House with four new faces among his nine cabinet advisers, associates said today.

Sources close to the White House said that among those missing from the new cabinet probably will be Secretary of State George Marshall, Defense Secretary James Forrestal, Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug, and Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer.

Reasons for their expected removal range from personal desire to presidential displeasure with those who paid scant attention to his campaign.

Mr. Truman is said to have made no final decisions as yet on whom he will put in their places. But his opportunity will come sometime before inauguration day, Jan. 20. It is traditional for cabinet members to submit their resignations prior to that date to give the president a freer hand in making his plans.

Certain to remain aboard the White House ship, intimates say, are Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin and Secretary of Agriculture Charles D. Wick.

Planned mightily in Mr. Truman's behalf, in addition, Tobin passed up a good chance to become governor of Massachusetts when he agreed to take over the labor post during the darkest days of the political campaign. His sacrifice is not expected to go unrewarded.

Secretary of Treasury John W. Snyder, an old friend of the president, is expected to stay on, for during the darkest days of his family's economic straits, he had helped out a family of $20,000 to the election campaign.

Postmaster General Jessie M. Donaldson looks good to president, intimates say, too. A career man in the department, his appointment was seen as an indication that was (Continued on Page Four)

GOP Shakeup in Operations Indicated

Philadelphia, Nov. 4 — (AP) — The chairman of the Republican national committee hinted today there may be a shakeup in GOP operations as the result of the unexpected presidential defeat of Governor Thomas E. Dewey.

Rep. Hugh D. Scott, (R-Pa.) said he's going on a vacation tomorrow but "it's not going to be a permanent vacation."

He added that this was a wide-spread setback among the nation's Republican leaders.

"We are full of fight, vigor and determination," he said. "And I know we have a very successful future. This defeat is in no way a setback to the Republican party."

Scott pointed out that the margin in popular vote was the closest in the last 20 years.

But, he said, "we will be very vigorous generally to learn whatever lessons may be learned from the election."

"If we have fallen short in informing the American people of what we stand for, then it's up to us to find out what was the trouble and to do something about it."

Scott said he is "giving present consideration" to calling a meeting of the GOP national committee but that he's giving party leaders a story of the "breath of life."

Declining direct comment on the defeat of such Republican leaders as Brooks (Ill.) and Ball (Maine), Scott said he hopes the Republican party will "continue to favor a truly progressive approach."

"I hope the party gives full recognition," he said, "to the fact that the world is one big neighborhood and that we're all in it together."

Officers Warn 'No Drinking Friday Night'

Chief of Police Clarence Baker, Sheriff Claude Sutton and Prosecuting Attorney James H. Pickett, in a joint statement today called attention to the provisions of law which prohibits the drinking of intoxicating liquors on any kind in any public place or public gathering.

The statutes and ordinances against public drinking will be strictly enforced at the Hope-Little Rock football game Friday night, these officers said.

Editorial comment on President Truman's victory in the nation's polls today included:

The New York Times—"We believe that the very closeness of the vote in this election—it was a smashing Democratic victory only when viewed in the light of the badly mistaken forecasts—will serve as a moderating influence on the policies of the next administration."

The New York Star—"Mr. Truman trusted the American people farther than the political experts, his own included, did; farther than the poll takers, farther than the most of the nation's newspapers (90 per cent)."

The New York Herald Tribune—"It will be one of the chief tests of President Truman's leadership to forge and make secure a working majority in the upper House. If he fails, he will find that the conditions of effective government have been nullified—not through any fault of the voters, but through the inherent weaknesses and divisions of his own party."

The New York Daily News—"We feel more than a little admiration for the way Mr. Truman fought out from behind the eight ball and through a witches' den of polls and dopesters, and not only won his own battle but also carried husky Senate and House Democratic majorities with him."

Raleigh, N. C., Ness and Ob server: "President Truman won by presenting a definite program to the people. It is the joint obligation of the president and every Democratic member of Congress to enact that program into law. The Republican majority in the 80th Congress had entirely too much cooperation from Democrats. That cooperation must cease."

NEW YORK COTTON

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Cotton futures were firm today on active short covering and commission house buying. Inflation ideas among traders based on the election result were dominant influence in the market. New crop deliveries again led the advance as traders felt that they were somewhat under the high support price in prospect next season. Some traders felt that the lean on the cotton crop will be at least 28.50 cents a pound for middling 15-16 inch cotton. New crop months sold somewhat under that level.

Heavy buying continued in cotton futures, reflecting inflationary sentiment among traders who looked for large spending and high farm support from the next Congress.

GRAIN AND PROVISION

Chicago, Nov. 4 (AP)—Advances in wheat ran up to around 4 cents at times today as post-election sentiment expanded. The big gains were scored in July and September contracts and much of the buying came from individuals who had been shot in these deliveries.

The short-covering movement in deferred wheat contracts got underway yesterday, following the election upset. It was based on the belief the government price support level for 1949 wheat will be higher than present futures prices.

All other grains, as well as soybeans, followed wheat higher.

Wheat closed 3-3 1/2 higher. NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Stock prices recovered as much as $3 a share today in a sharp rebound from the post-election market slump.

The March back up was fast with blocks of 1,000 or more shares selling frequently.

Widest gains for a handful of stocks were reduced in late dealings.

Volume tended to slow down a bit after fast morning trade, but at that an unusually large amount of business was done. Turnover was at the rate of around 1,500,000 shares for the full session, which would compare with 3,200,000 yesterday, a high for nearly half a year.

Among stocks gaining ground were U. S. Steel, Inland Steel, Hudson Bay Mining and a 1948 high, H. J. Kniss, American Telephone, Phelps Dodge, St. Joe Lead, Allied Chemical, Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Union Pacific, Pacific Western Oil, Standard Oil of California, Montgomery Ward, Dow Chemical, Alcoa, Southern Railway, Nickel Plate, Distillers Corp., Firestone Tire, and Bethlehem Steel.

Election of Truman Cheered

By BRUCE W. MUNN

London, Nov. 4 (UP)—Diplomats from Norway to Greece cheered President Truman's election today as a guarantee there would be no change in American foreign policy.

Western Europe, bent on rearmament and recovery, also gratefully hailed the victory of Mr. Truman as a forerunner of continued American aid.

The iron curtain countries indicated boredom was their only reaction.

Premier Einar Gebhardsen of Norway said the victory would serve to stabilize U. S. foreign policy, a statement that was echoed by the Greek press.

But the Communist view was that both major candidates were tools of imperialistic American capitalism which was seeking "to liquidate the last vestige of democratic freedom in the U. S. and unleash a new war."

Those who welcomed the victory said it would reveal to the Russians that there is no doubt about American policy toward Moscow and that there will be no brake on organization of anti-Communist economic and military blocs.

Truman, who once played the piano for Stalin at Potsdam, will see to it that Stalin does not play first fiddle in our hemisphere, the Copenhagen National Tidende said.

The conservative Daily Mail said in a front page editorial that Mr. Truman had scored "one of the most remarkable election victories of modern times" and that the British people welcomed it.

The Laborite Daily Herald viewed the result as a repudiation of the British Conservative view that democratic opinion throughout the world was swinging to the right.

Semi-official reaction in Whitehall was that Mr. Truman now would feel justified in proceeding at full speed with his plans for financing the military phases of the western union agreement.

Winston Churchill, in a brief statement, congratulated the U. S. for conducting a hard fought election campaign without impairing the bi-partisan foreign policy "on which so much that we fought for depends."

In Moscow the newspapers Izvestia and Pravda reported Mr. Truman's election briefly—on the last pages—without comment.

Some 50 lines were devoted to the Congressional returns, Governor Dewey's election statement and President Truman's pledge to "dedicate all my efforts to insure world peace, prosperity and happiness for our entire people here."

400,000 Vehicles Registered in Arkansas

Little Rock, Nov. 4 (UP)—Nearly 400,000 motor vehicles have been registered in Arkansas during 1948, the State Highway Department reported today.

The department said that through the month of September a total of 398,173 vehicles were licensed, including 247,789 passenger cars, 120,236 trucks and tractor trucks, 23,000 trailers and 3,091 motor cycles.

Jonesboro Vet Killed in Accident

Jonesboro, Nov. 2 (AP)—A Jonesboro Purple heart veteran was killed this morning when his new truck and a southbound Frisco passenger train collided two miles west of here.

The victim was Delbert R. Rice, 28, an employee of a Jonesboro auto body repair shop. Rice was wounded twice in the Pacific theater during World War Two.

The truck, which Rice had purchased yesterday, was carried half a mile on the train engine before the train was stopped. Just before the train was brought to a halt his body was thrown from the truck. Rice is survived by his wife.

Correction

According to John P. Cox, W. S. Atkins was the first president of the Hope Kiwanis Club and not Mr. Cox as reported in yesterday's Star. Mr. Cox was second president and H. V. Herndon, Sr. was third president.

Total New York state revenues for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1948 were more than $708,000,000.

the train was stopped. Just before the train was brought to a halt his body was thrown from the truck. Rice is survived by his wife.

Experts Must Swallow Million Words

Washington, Nov. 3. —(UP)—Today was a swell day to swallow a million words or eat a meal of fat crow.

The experts in Washington wrote their stories in advance yesterday. Some made their pieces an open letter to Tom Dewey telling how the world ought to be run. Others wrote a fond farewell to Mr. Truman.

Then the boys retired to the Press Club lounge to listen to the news over the radio. Along about midnight many of the scribes retired hastily to their offices to do some fancy hedging in substitute yards.

Washington, the home of presidents, was a sleepy town today—same as it was election day. Extra details of cops were called out on duty last night—in case of a wild celebration, but the city was so quiet the chief sent 'em home before 11 p.m.

People in the district, of course, are interested in who lives in the White House. But they have nothing to say about it since they are denied the right to vote.

I talked to a few of them yesterday and they are pretty burned up about it. Maurice Culatti, writer, for one. He lives less than 50 feet from the Maryland line. If he lived over there he could vote.

I could see a polling place from my front window, he said. John H. Wilson, a garage mechanic who works in the district but votes in Maryland cast a vote, all right, but he didn't like the way they do things over there in Montgomery County, Md.

The county advertises a secret ballot. "But when you step up to get your ballot," says John, "a clerk

DOROTHY DIX Belittling Wife

Probers Seek Cause of Plane Wreck

Muldrow, Okla., Nov. 2. —(UP)—Investigators examined wreckage and witnesses today, seeking to learn why an air forces transport plane broke apart plunging 11 men to death.

The C-47, on a routine mission from Shppard Field, Wichita Falls, Tex., broke into three pieces and fell just a few blocks from the business district of this East Oklahoma town yesterday.

Wreckage was scattered over a mile and a half area. Witnesses said the ship was flying low in a heavy rain, when it began to disintegrate.

Soldiers were sent here from Camp Chaffee at Fort Smith, Ark., 20 miles East. The Camp Chaffee Pro said there were 11 men on the plane and that all 11 bodies were recovered.

Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin. A B-4 bag found in the wreckage bore the name of Capt. E. Mostyn.

Investigation of the crash is being conducted by a team sent here from Tinker Field, Oklahoma City. Tom Morgan, one of the crash witnesses, said he was standing in front of a Muldrow store watching the plane, when it suddenly broke into three pieces.

People in the district, of course, are interested in who lives in the White House. But they have nothing to say about it since they are denied the right to vote.

Of all the mean wives, perhaps the very worst is the belittling wife whose favorite indoor and outdoor sport is humiliating her husband and attempting to lower his prestige in the eyes of all who know him.

The poor man who is married to such a woman is never permitted to make a statement without its being challenged. She always interrupts his conversation with strangers to correct his grammar. She is always bemoaning her fate for having married just a plodder who has no talent for money-making. She seems to get a peculiar pleasure out of disparaging her husband and representing him as a fool to others.

Now it is hard to understand why some women do this. Perhaps they have a distorted vanity that makes them want to glorify themselves at their husbands' expense, and they think that they show how superior they are to the men they love by being so correct. Perhaps they get a sadistic enjoyment out of torturing their husbands with their fault-finding, and derive a kick from watching them writhe with mortification as they are held up for ridicule.

Wife's Opinion Vital

But the belittling wife forgets that every wife writes her husband's price tag and that the world takes him pretty much at her valuation. If she thinks he is an oracle and begins every sentence with "John says," as if that settled the matter; if she is always boasting of how ambitious and determined to succeed he is, she begins quoting his opinion, tone, and look upon him as an up-and-coming man.

However, if a wife always is correcting her husband and making him seem like a moron to us, of course she is always wailing about what little enterprise he has and what poor judgment, why, we set him down as a failure and pass him by when he has plans to hand out.

The belittling wife does her husband the greatest injury that one human being can do another. She kills his faith in himself. She paralyzes his energies. She slays his ambition. She puts out the fire on his altar.

It is a ghastly thing what a wife can do to a man when she shows him that she has no belief in him. It makes him feel like a failure and a life ends, ashen and dust, isn't worth striving for. And the wonder of it is that so many men go on suffering martyrdom at their wives' hands.

We cannot help feeling a certain contempt for a man who puts up with such treatment from his wife. But, in reality, the husband may be guided by the noblest motives, by pity for a woman who is a poor neuritic, and by his determination to keep the home together for his children—no matter at what sacrifice to himself.

But the general reaction of the public is that a man should demand that his wife treat him with outward respect, and that he is more or less of a weakling if he fails to receive it.

party as a crippled thing whose left wing didn't know what its right wing was doing. But the Wallace and Thurmond splinter movements are now deadlier, having been beaten by the Democrats, than they would have been if the Republicans had won. Under a sweeping GOP victory, the third and fourth parties might have claimed a share of the corpse of the Democratic donkey. They can't do that now. And if the Democratic Party leadership wants to finish the job, it can completely liquidate these minority groups which stabbed it in the back.

If the Democrats and the Wallaces had not broken away from the Democratic Party, Truman's victory would have been overwhelming. In the rash of political post-mortems that will now break out, there will probably be many out-tossed clubs and aprons. There will probably be many reactionary charges that it was "the New Deal radicals and Communists" that put the Democrats in a jam again. That's one the average citizen will want to eye rather carefully.

There is no question but that the labor organizations with their political action committees and their drives to get out the vote helped the Democratic Party. But it must be remembered that the leadership of the AF of L, and CIO and the Railway Brotherhoods all repudiated their Communist elements, and the Communists themselves supported Wallace.

There are a couple of states where this pattern does not fit perfectly. In Illinois the Wallaces had no chance to vote for their candidates because they couldn't get the Progressive Party on the ballot. It must be assumed that they voted Democratic and were responsible for the Republican upset in that state. But in Michigan, where there is a well organized labor movement, it was politically, and Dewey carried the state as a native son.

What gave Truman his strength was apparently his effective chastisement of the both Congress. That was something the voters could understand.

As for the Democrats having a "mandate" to carry out any extreme program, that is pure poppycock, as such talk always is. The result of the race was too close for that. The majority and minor-party as a crippled thing whose left wing didn't know what its right wing was doing. But the Wallace and Thurmond splinter movements are now deadlier, having been beaten by the Democrats, than they would have been if the Republicans had won. Under a sweeping GOP victory, the third and fourth parties might have claimed a share of the corpse of the Democratic donkey. They can't do that now. And if the Democratic Party leadership wants to finish the job, it can completely liquidate these minority groups which stabbed it in the back.

Forrestal, Krug

Mr. Forrestal meant to take post office activities out of the "political plum" division. There is no evidence that he has since changed his mind about it.

The question mark, according to administration insiders, is Attorney General Tom Clark. He had a thriving law practice in Texas before entering the government, and has been known to express a desire to return to it. However, Clark has started several important anti-trust proceedings lately and may want to remain on the job to see them through, it is said.

This is the way the potential absences shape up.

Marshall—As administrator of a bipartisan foreign policy, he refrained from political activity, and was out of the country during much of the campaign. He is said to be eager to return to private life after 47 years as an army and diplomatic official. In addition, he and the president are said to be of different opinions on recent foreign policy matters.

Forrestal—He announced early in the campaign his desire to remain outside the contest because of the delicate nature of his job. A wealthy man, he made only a token contribution to the Democratic campaign fund.

Krug—An able administrator, the interior chief has made some enemies among presidential associates who accuse him of taking the campaign too lightly. A year ago, when he was named to the cabinet shortly before the campaign got underway. But his lack of campaign fervor was said to have disappointed Mr. Truman. It is believed that he will not be urged to stay on.

Sawyer—A former Democratic national committeeman from Ohio, Sawyer was named to the cabinet shortly before the campaign got underway. But his lack of campaign fervor was said to have disappointed Mr. Truman. It is believed that he will not be urged to stay on.

Dewey Knew Early He Was Beaten

By LEO TURNER

New York, Nov. 4. (UPI)—Tom Dewey made a lot of friends in his last appearance as a presidential candidate. But he was too late to care.

He was whipped. He had admitted it two years previously. "I was his last meeting with reporters who had asked questions at him for months trying to find out what goes on in the mind of a presidential candidate."

He stood with his hands in the jacket pockets of the same somber overcoat that he had worn in a room previously. The only obvious change in his costume was another fresh shirt and tie. This time a grey tie with red and white stripes.

His face was flushed, his eyes glinted sometimes and his smile was worn. But his words were full of fire. He came quickly and there was no concern for "policy."

"I don't care how to get on, and there's no question about it. I'm in a hurry to get on, and I'm in a hurry to get on, and I'm in a hurry to get on."

He was all wrong together in our opinion," he said.

There was a warning to the voice and you felt that he would mind anyone.

"I haven't a plan beyond today," he said.

It was a different Dewey than the one who conceded defeat four years ago to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That Dewey was angry, his eyes glinted. He ordered a stenographer to stop interrupting him. He refused to repeat statements for reporters who didn't catch them.

He got that 1944 press confer-

Rich Mountain Co-Op Would Extend Lines

Little Rock, Nov. 4. (UPI)—The Rich Mountain Rural Electric cooperative, which operates 7 1/2 miles of lines, today asked the Arkansas Public Service Commission for authority to extend its lines into Howard county.

The project would call for construction of 35 miles of new distribution lines at a cost of more than $100,000.

The co-op was praised for its public service in a hearing today by Frank M. Wilkes, Shreveport, La., president of Southwestern Gas Electric Co.

Wilkes told the regulatory body the co-op is doing an excellent job in a territory where surveys had shown that such service would not be feasible.

He said the co-op now was serving about 1,000 customers, although surveys by his company and by the Rural Electrification Administration showed potential customers to be about 250.

Wilkes said that Southwestern had no objection to the Rich Mountain application. The Public Service Commission took under advisement Southwestern's application for a change in territory placing the city of Cove under Rich Mountain's jurisdiction.

Auto Dealers Are Jailed for Failure to Deliver Cars

Jerseyville, Ill., Nov. 2 —(AP)—Robert L. Kneizer, Arthur F. Kramer, and Kramer's wife, Edna, were indicted yesterday by a Jersey county grand jury in connection with their multi-million dollar automobile transactions. Mrs. Kramer was indicted on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. She allegedly accepted $1,637 from a Jerseyville businessman, Kenneth Brayshaw, on the promise that he would get a new car.

For Kneizer and Kramer, it was their second indictment on charges of conspiracy to defraud and obtain money by a confidence scheme. A Madison county grand jury took similar action against them a few weeks ago.

They're mighty good folks to have around...

These four good people have worked for this company a total of 102 years. The average for all 28,000 Esso Standard Oil workers today is almost 14 years with the company!

In a time like this, workers like these are mighty good ones to have on the job—good not just for the company, but also for you.

Their extra measure of skill, experience and job loyalty is setting amazing records in production to help meet an all-time record high demand for gasoline and heating oil and other products.

One reason these extra-good workers are here today is simply the extra good jobs they have at Esso Standard.

Over 30 years ago, the company set up an unusual "good jobs policy." It was based on the belief that better jobs would mean better workers, and that would mean a better company.

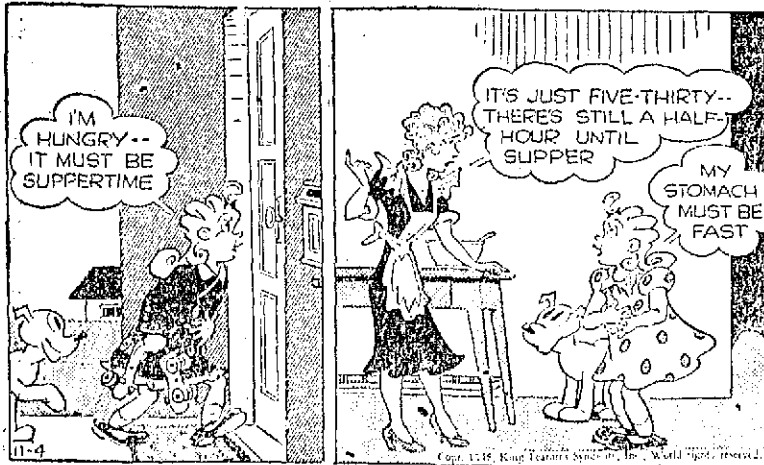

Since then, with our workers, we have developed plans which give every Esso Standard worker such job advantages as:

- uniformly good wage scales...
- vacations with pay...
- special benefits in case of sickness or accidents...
- chance to advance in the company...
- cash savings in a Thrift Plan...
- fair treatment at all job levels...
- and planned retirement with steady income assured for life.

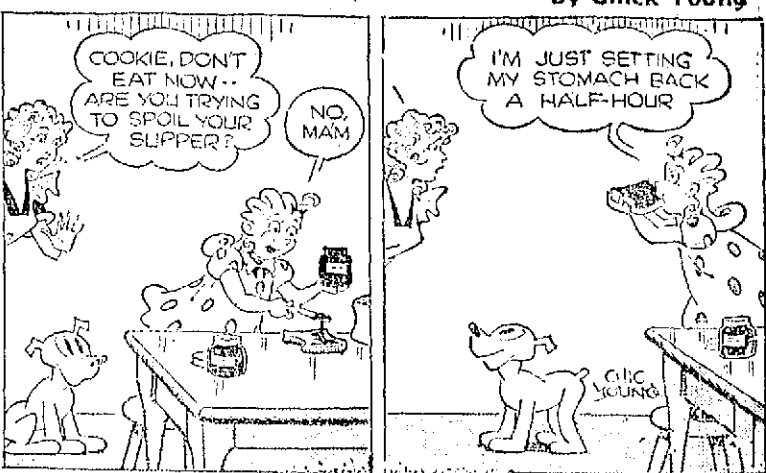

All this was done as a matter of good business. It has given good business results. Not a strike or major work disturbance in over 30 years. Steady, skillful workers on the job. Records in production when the country needs record supply of product. Yes...they're mighty good folks to have around, from your point of view and from ours!

It Takes a Lotta Horse Sense for a Man to Stay in the Running—Anytime

BY HAL BOYLE

New York — It was the year 2248, and horses ruled the earth.

A gay herd gathered at Upside Downs, the fashionable new human racing park. They were there to watch a picked field of people compete on a fast track in the biggest race of the season. The horses sat in the stands, wearing sun glasses.

Galloping past the clubhouse, a society reporter with her pencil in her teeth hurriedly scribbled an item and tossed it to her copy boy to trot back to the office. It read:

"Happiest filly at the track today was Sandy Lady, wearing a new pink blanket from Paris. Her seatmate, as usual, was tall, dark and handsome War Fever, owner of the biggest stable of racing humans in history. He wore a diamond-studded collar."

But Sandy Lady really wasn't happy at all. She was having a lover's quarrel with her beau—Big War Fever.

"I simple won't marry you until you settle down and quit sowing your wild oats," she said tearfully, shaking her blonde mane out of her eye.

"Racing is immoral. I'm not going to prance to the altar with any horse that spends all his time watching people run around a track. There's more to life than that."

"Well, a horse has to have some fun," snorted War Fever.

"Yes, but I expect to marry a real horse—not just a rich clothesman," whinnied Sandy Lady, softly. "Besides it must be terribly expensive to keep a stable if racing humans."

"Oh, I have to hire a few plugs to show and exercise them," said War Fever.

"But how about the feed?"

"They generally run best on beefsteak."

"But isn't that expensive, dear?"

"Well, it ain't hay," laughed War Fever.

"Please, dear," said Sandy Lady. "Give up this human racing business. We could live in clover the rest of our days."

"You forget we owners of racing humans have a big responsibility," grumbled War Fever.

"Such as—?"

"Well, we're trying to improve the breed," said the stallion lamely.

Sandy Lady merely gave him a withering look and turned away.

War Fever switched his tail thoughtfully. He realized it would be a horse on him if he didn't boot the mark. This filly wasn't fooling.

"Tell you what I'll do," he said.

"Did you notice that chubby brunette girl they were saddling up as we came in?"

"Oh, you mean Jane Doe, the one with the pretty brown eyes?"

"Isn't that just like a filly—judging a racing human by its eyes," laughed War Fever. "Anyway, she's supposed to be the fastest thing on two legs. She's racing my prize man, Richard Roe."

"Where do they find anybody to think up such odd names for people?" murmured Sandy Lady.

"Never mind that," said War Fever. Here's the deal. If my Richard Roe comes in first he'll be the first gelding ever to win 1,000,000 bales of timothy—and that certainly is hay.

"But the race is a tossup. Tell you what I'll do. If Jane Doe wins I'll sell my stable tomorrow and we'll get married the next day. But if Richard Roe wins I get to keep my stable for a year after the wedding. Are you game?"

"It took only a second for Sandy Lady to make up her mind."

"Yes!"

Then the bugle blew and the sleek, beautifully trained, two-legged animals trotted slowly to the post. The barriers lifted.

"There he off!" the herd in the stands yelled. The two favorites swiftly broke into the lead, close to the rail, a stride apart.

"Comcon, Jane Doe," neighed Sandy Lady, excitedly.

"Come on, Richard Roe!"

neighed War Fever.

Suddenly the filly turned to her stallion friend and snickered:

"Isn't it really silly for two grownup sensible horses like us to be here betting on people? You can bet they'd never bet on horses."

"Yes," laughed War Fever indignantly. "People are much too smart for that."

And the two horses put their hooves on the rail and watched the human race.

Moral: It takes a lotta horse sense for a man to stay in the running—anytime.

Red Delegates Amazed at U. S. Election

By The Associated Press

Expressions of surprise came from U. N. delegates and European newspapers, most of which had predicted a Dewey victory.

Jacob Malik, second-ranking Russian U. N. delegate, said "amazing is the right word."

Andrei Vishinsky, too, said "amazing," A. A. Arutunian, another Russian delegate and a member of the Russian foreign affairs department, told American newsmen the result "really makes little difference because" of your bi-partisan foreign policy.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, chief British delegate, said "I think everybody is surprised." Other British delegates said they were "bowed over."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said in Lyon, France, a Truman victory "would be a very good thing for the United States and for the world."

Constantin Tsaldaris, foreign minister of Greece which has been receiving U. S. aid, asked "does it matter who wins?"

Brig. Gen. Carlos Romulo, chief Philippines delegate, said the results show the American people

Union County Favors Wage Increases

El Dorado, Nov. 3 —(AP)— Union county apparently favors raising salaries for its elected officials.
